The Donald C. Marsh Collection was placed in the Wayne State University Archives by Professor Donald Marsh in July of 1958.

After completing his B.S. in 1924 and an M.A. in 1925 at Northwestern University, Marsh worked on his Ph.D. at the University of Michigan. He began his tenure at Wayne University in 1931 as an instructor in sociology, becoming an assistant professor in 1937, an associate professor in 1944 and retiring as professor of sociology in June, 1972.

Professor Marsh has written a number of articles and monographs dealing with intergroup relations, most notably Black-Jewish relations and Jewish-Gentile relations, as well as surveys of attitudes among and toward minority groups.

Marsh was particularly active in community affairs. Following the 1943 riots in Detroit, an Interracial Committee was organized to monitor and investigate the causes of racial tension in Detroit. Marsh was asked in September of 1944 to be chairman of the Popular Education Committee set up by the Interracial Committee. As chairman, Marsh was also a member of the Coordinating Council on Human Relations, set up by the Interracial Committee for the coordination of planning and the pooling of resources among community organizations.

Marsh served as vice-president (1951-52) and president (1952-53) of the Michigan Sociological Society. He was also active in the Ohio Valley Sociological Society, the Society for the Study of Social Problems, the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials and the Committee on the Nature, Scope and Theory of Intergroup Relations. His tenure at Wayne State University included service as president of the Sociological Society, co-editor and editor of The Wayne Sociologist, acting chairman of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology and member of the University Council.

The papers of Donald C. Marsh reflect his work with the Interracial Committee and its Popular Education Committee and with the Coordinating Council on Human Relations. The papers also reflect his involvement with the Nationality Committee of the Council of Social Agencies and the International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit.

Important subjects covered in the collection:
