1897 - 1965
(Predominately, 1933 - 1960)

51 linear feet
18 scrapbooks

Accession Number 377

The papers of Local 833 were placed in the Archives of Labor History and Urban Affairs in December 1969 by Local 833 and were opened for research in 1972.

The Kohler Co. of Kohler, Wisconsin, manufactures plumbingware. Its workers first organized in August 1933 when they received the charter for Federal Labor Union #18545 from the American Federation of Labor. In September 1933 the company responded by forming another union under its auspices - - the Kohler Workers' Association (KWA). The first Kohler strike began July 16, 1934, because of the Federal Labor Union's unsuccessful attempts at collective bargaining. The company, claiming that the strike was started by outside agitators, hired deputies and bought an arsenal to protect itself. On the night of July 27, 1934, there was a riot which resulted in the death of two strikers and the wounding of scores of people. A National Labor Relations Board election in September 1934, resulted in the KWA being designated as the workers' choice. In October the Federal Labor Union began a boycott, but it was unsuccessful. The strike dragged on until April 1941 with a few strikers still picketing. With settlement the Federal Labor Union became inoperative .

In August 1950 the KWA and the company signed an agreement that was somewhat like a union contract. At the same time, the United Auto Workers began an organizing drive among the workers with help from some KWA officials who were dissatisfied with the KWA's relations with Kohler and felt they needed a large union backing them up. The workers voted to affiliate with the UAW in April 1952.

The second Kohler strike began April 5, 1954, after unsuccessful attempts to negotiate a new contract. The union filed its first unfair labor practice complaint against Kohler Co. July 8, 1954, and began NLRB Case #13-CA-1780 that would not be settled until August 26, 1960.

In 1954 the union began a nationwide boycott and the company reacted by sending its officials on speaking engagements across the country. The Senate's Select Committee on Improper Activities in the Labor or Management Field, i.e., the McClellan Committee, held hearings on the UAW and the Kohler Strike in 1958 which resulted in the UAW coming through "without damage to its reputation for honesty and democracy." In December 1965, in an out of court settlement, the union agreed to drop all pending unfair labor practice charges before the NLRB in return for the company's payment of $4.5 million in back wages and pension credits.

The papers in this collection deal mainly with the second strike, the NLRB case, and the McClellan hearings. However, there are some materials on the 1934 strike, the Federal Labor Union, the workings of the KWA from 1933 to 1952, and even a few items dealing with the original Kohler strike in 1897.

Important subjects covered in the collection are:

- Kohler strikes, 1934-41 and 1954-60
- McClellan Committee Hearings on the Kohler Strike, 1958
- NLRB Unfair Labor Practice Case, 1954-60
- UAW Organizing Drive, 1950-52

Among the correspondents are:

- Paul Douglas
- James R. Hoffa
- Irving Ives
- Walter J. Kohler, Jr.
- James E. Murray
- William Proxmire
- Carl Sandburg
- Alexander Wiley
