The Committee in Solidarity with the People of El Salvador (CISPES) was founded in 1980, the same year El Salvador's five revolutionary groups united to form the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN), an armed guerrilla group, in response to increasing human rights violations committed by the Salvadoran military and death squads. Beginning in 1980, the Michigan Interfaith Committee on Central American Human Rights (MICAHA), a faith-based solidarity organization, educated and organized the public on issues in Central America. Detroit CISPES and the Nicaraguan Network merged in 1985 to become the Central America Solidarity Committee (CASC). CASC and MICAHA merged to form the Organization in Solidarity with Central America (OSCA) in 1993.

The fifteen-year civil war in El Salvador, which resulted in 75,000 deaths, ended with the signing of the Peace Accords in 1992. The FMLN then organized as a political party and participated in the 1994 elections. OSCA closed its office in 1995.

The papers of OSCA consist of correspondence with public officials, activists, religious leaders, and national affiliates in the Latin American solidarity movement, organizing materials for local and national demonstrations, and many newsletters related to Latin American politics and popular movements. Also included are general membership and Steering & Planning Committee minutes from Detroit CISPES, Detroit CASC, MICAHA, and OSCA.
